culture360 Media Partner of Engage: International Forum on the Arts for Children & Young People

Presented by ThinkArts, in association with Goethe-Institut / Max Mueller Bhavan Kolkata, Engage seeks to bring together various stakeholders – parents, artists, cultural institutions, educators, museum professionals, venue directors and arts funding bodies - to share inspirational approaches, to deliberate on and arrive at possible solutions to bridge the gap in arts engagements for children and young people. Conducted entirely over the online platform, the Forum will include multiple perspectives through participation from across India and abroad.

Highlights of Engage:
- Bringing together stakeholders from various spheres in the arts for children and young people sector in one platform – parents, educators, curators, venue organisers, museum...
professionals, arts council members, artists, performers and more.

- Amplifying voices from across the globe – speakers and moderators will span Australia, Bangladesh, Egypt, Germany, India, Norway, Pakistan, Singapore, South Africa, Thailand, The Netherlands, UK, USA, among others.

- Creating dialogues to identify and address gaps in the arts for children and young people sector – focusing on arts and education, young people in cultural spaces, accessibility, digital arts engagements and advocacy.

- Presenting workshops by experienced professionals, for parents and educators on creatively engaging children and young people.

- Curating and showcasing digital performances and films created exclusively for children and young people.
