From Friday to Friday, May 7 to 14, 2021, the Zlin Design Week festival will wave the waters of Czech design. In addition to the well-known names of the Czech and international design scene, the eight-day program will also offer a number of workshops, exhibitions, and an accompanying program; participants can also look forward to an online excursion through Zlin.

Zlin Design Week is a festival inextricably linked with Tomas Bata University and the city of Zlin, known as one of the largest cultural events there. Its main idea is connecting, sharing, inspiring, and bringing the overall approach to design as an area that is not only intended for a small group of people but on the contrary, is a part of the lives of us all.

This is one of the reasons why the organizers will appreciate the new talents in this field for the twelfth time in the Best in Design competition. The prizes will be awarded in three categories, which this year included almost 400 works from around the world.

Online activities can be followed remotely: a conference, fashion show, online exhibition with dozens of projects mapping the topic of COOPERATION, a concert and various workshops.
