European Culture Forum | new dates 2016

 European Culture Forum - Main News_1

Following the postponement of the European Culture Forum in November due to force majeure, the new dates for the forum have been announced and it will take place on 19-20 April 2016 in Brussels.

The European Commission will announce more details in early 2016 and will be in touch with attendees to ask them to reconfirm their participation at the event.

What is The European Culture Forum?

It is a free biennial gathering of European policy makers and those working in the cultural and creative sectors across Europe and beyond, giving them the chance to meet and discuss common developments and challenges. The programme brings together panel discussions, artistic performances and networking opportunities, and this year's Forum will focus on how talent and creativity can boost innovation, growth and jobs; the digital single market; social cohesion and intercultural dialogue; and how culture can strengthen Europe on the global scene.
