Korea | four cultural institutions hold joint declaration ceremony for ethics and human rights

In Korea, Arts Council Korea has announced that four public institutions in the cultural field have held a joint declaration ceremony for ethics and human rights.

The declaration was designed to spread the value of ethics and human rights to cultural and artistic sites and to actively fulfill the social responsibilities of public institutions.

Four organisations, including the Arts Council, Asian Cultural Center, Film Promotion Committee, and Korea Creative Content Agency, participated in the joint declaration, and the declaration ceremony was held at the end of January as an online non-face-to-face event for social distancing.

In the Joint Declaration, provisions related to ▲ integrity and ethics ▲ no discrimination ▲ working environment ▲ sexual harassment and sexual violence were stipulated, and included the will to practice to spread correct values to the cultural and artistic ecosystem.

Chairman Park Jong-gwan of the Arts Council said, “This declaration is meaningful in that it is the first public institution in the cultural field to jointly resolve the Declaration of Ethics and Human Rights.”

“Responsibility as a public institution while ethics and human rights threaten the creative industry ecosystem. I will try to do my best.”

The full text of the joint declaration can be found through the website of the Arts Council. (<https://arko.or.kr/>)
