Barcelona | SAC International Curatorial Residency Program 2019

SAC International Curatorial Residency Program 2019 is the residency program at Barcelona's Sant Andreu Contemporani, in collaboration with Fabra i Coats - Fàbrica de Creació and Institut Ramon Llull, open to international curators.

As part of the program, we are announcing an open call for proposals to choose an international curator who will be part of the Miquel Casablanques Prize for the Visual Arts' jury in 2019, and will later develop a curatorial project with a selection of Catalan artists chosen from applicants to the prize. The project must be presented at the country of residence of the curator or in another international venue that she/he decides. The residency covers the expenses of jurying the prize and for the curatorial proposal (1,700 € subject to applicable taxes), for the production of the exhibition (2,000 € subject to applicable taxes), accommodation and travel.

The purpose of the open call is to offer the curator personal knowledge of the art context through involvement in the jury of the Miquel Casablanques Prize, and to foster, in the context of young art talent, future collaborations between local and foreign cultural actors.

The registration period to send the application is going to be from July 1st, 2018, to January 10th, 2019. The submission form will be available at the website until midnight, January 10th. No applications will be accepted after this time. In case of incidents with the online registration, the required documents should then be sent by mail before midnight, January 10th, 2019.

The selected applicant will be announced on February 10th, 2019.
