Brussels | weave - an alternative mass arts residency

At the end of September 2013, sixty professional dance, theatre and performance artists from across the globe will come together for one week (29 September - 7 October) in a huge abandoned factory building in Brussels. They will meet and form a temporary community within which they will play, question, and perform together in order to explore the interaction of improvisation and community.

7 days

60 artists

1 abandoned building

the focus: community and improvisation

Through workshops, labs, jams and public sharings, participants are challenged to deepen and question their own practices. Weave will also provide them an opportunity to meet and work with fellow artists and extend their networks. The project will be led by a team of professional artists whose work is committed to experimentation and who share a particular interest in improvised and site-responsive interdisciplinary performance.

We are looking for risk-taking, curious and involved professionals who are open to commit to an intense and exploratory process within an intricate community setting. If you are up for diving into a truly introspective and badabooming quest, apply now.

Suitable applicants are selected on a first come first serve basis

Application deadline is Sunday 15 September.

Place

We will invade an abandoned factory building of 13'000 m2 standing in a northern neighbourhood of Brussels, where many artistic venues such as the Kaai Theater, Dans Centrum Jette and Studio Hybrid are located.
