Interconnected Parts

The British Council has published the report 'Arts and Technologies in ASEAN: Interconnected Parts', which takes a closer look at 10 ASEAN member states and Timor-Leste by investigating how these intersections are leading to new practices and trends.

The arts and technologies ecosystem in the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) is shaped by tradition, modernity, and a drive for prosperity. It has evolved significantly over the past decade, as marked by the expansion of social media platforms, immersive experiences and artificial intelligence. The Covid-19 pandemic accelerated a shift to hybrid and digital-first approaches in the arts, with a focus on upskilling and new livelihood opportunities for creative professionals. Artists are pushing practices by using technologies in lighting, 3D, sensors, sound production and others.

The British Council commissioned Creative Friction Ltd. to learn more and map these developments. Through in-depth case studies and over 60 interviews with artists, technologists, policymakers and academics, the report reveals a highly diverse region at the forefront of ideas and experimentation. The study is unique as it examines developments from an artist-led perspective rather than a purely economic lens.
