[BLOK]

[BLOK] is a curatorial collective which operates at the intersection of art, urban research and political activism. Its projects are designed and realised as a platform for the work of artists, curators, researchers and political activists who are interested in the politics of space, production of commons, democratisation of culture and reflection of artistic practices from the perspective of their social and production conditions. Since 2001, [BLOK] has designed and produced projects in public spaces, lectures, exhibitions, long-term research projects, publications, and has also taken part in public debates on the neoliberal transformation of public space and institutions, as well as the struggle for their democratisation.
