Bohemia JazzFest

Bohemia JazzFest has quickly become one of the largest summer music festivals in Europe. The festival started in 2006 by acclaimed jazz guitarist Rudy Linka, who wanted to present and promote world-class jazz in the Czech Republic. Every year the festival draws nearly 100,000 jazz fans to historic town squares throughout the country, making a significant economic impact. All the concerts are admission-free and open-air, featuring headline performers playing in spectacular medieval settings.
