RIXC Centre for New Media Culture

RIXC, established in 2000, is the centre for new media culture, art gallery and artist collective, that initiates projects in intersection of art, science and emerging technologies.

RIXC's activities include: running an art gallery, production of artworks and innovative art, science and technology projects, organising of the annual RIXC Art Science festival, exhibitions, publishing of Acoustic Space journal series. RIXC uses events and publications to introduce novelty themes, such as renewable energy (2009), techno-ecologies (2011), art of resilience (2012), fields – contextual seedbeds for social changes (2014), renewable futures (2015) and open fields (2016). RIXC also is a key founder of Liepaja University's Art Research Lab & New Media Art education programme. RIXC has extensive experience in network building locally and internationally.
