Pathshala South Asian Media Institute

Pathshala South Asian Media Institute is the early school of Photography in the South Asian region, which offers various short-term and long-term educational programs, including workshops and presentations in photography and multimedia journalism throughout the year. The institute not only allows students to explore the world of image making but provides them opportunities to question beyond the confines of the discipline.

Similar content