The Philippine Communication Centrum

The Philippine Communication Centrum is working to become the premier repository of the narrative, visual, physical, and electronic records and resources chronicling not only the history and evolution but also the current directions and trends of communication and mass media in the Philippines. The CENTRUM is envisioned to be hub where people and technology converge to enhance the utilization of ICT resources for development and progress. It consists of the virtual museum, and later, a physical museum on communication and mass media. The Media Museum features the history and evolution of communication in the Philippines, who's who in communication media, media trends, and exhibits of communication artifacts and landmarks in electronic format.
