Lao Young Designers Project

LAO YOUNG DESIGNERS PROJECT

Lao Young Designers Project, established in 2014, is a non-profit programme of Lao Fashion Week with the ultimate aim of giving a platform to young Lao talents to showcase their creative abilities in the fashion sector. The project provides them with opportunities to study and train with international fashion academies so they can pursue their dreams in becoming professionals in the fashion industry.

Lao Young Designers Project has successfully sent Lao young talents to study and train in acclaimed international fashion academies each year like the esteemed ESMOD International School of Fashion & Business in Paris (France), Nanyang Academy of Fine Arts in Singapore, London College of Design & Fashion in Hanoi (Vietnam), and Fashion Institute of the Philippines in Manila (Philippines), as well as in leading fashion houses in Bangkok such as Eaggamon and Pitnapat Fashion House. Many of them have returned home with precious experiences and have established their own fashion labels and become up-and-coming fashion designers of the country.
